ELECTRIC LIGHT DANGERS. Last evening, shortly after nine o'clock, Mr. Smythe, Superinten-dent of the Electric Light Station, went on to the roof of the Merchant's Exchange to separate the electric and the telephone wires which had become crossed. Before he knew it his left hand came in contact with the electric wire and the third finger was se badly burned that it had to be amputated by Dr. Miner. The second finger was also injured.

Mrs. Gascoyne, who resides near the corner of King and Alakea streets, was at work on her sewing machine about 9:30 last evening when she felt her fingers tingle. She rubbed them and commenced to work again but it was of no use, they were in the same condition. Going to the front door she noticed a tree at the corner of the street on fire, and at once telephoned to Mr. J. C. White, the Fire Marshal. He proceeded to the spot and found that the insulator on the tree had got broken and the wire was resting on the tree which was all ablaze. He stood by with several buckets of water in case there was any communication of the flames to a building close by. A few minutes later he telephoned to the Electric Light Station and the currents were shut off. A tree on Merchant street also took fire. The heavy rain of last night forced the branches of the trees on the wires.

This interdsting relationships closed yestering after a very settaments of the pupils. The school work was chown to be most thorough and gave much pleasure to the parents and friends of the little ones who had assembled in the school room. Interspersed with the lessons were humorous recitals, duets and songs. Miss von Holt and Miss Leila Wedehouse presided at the piano. The reading was clear and distinct in pronunciation and gave the impression that great pains had been taken to train the young people and give them true ideas oft this necessary and useful but of neg-lected art. The other studies were most satisfactory and the prizes which the scholars received evinced the attention they had bestowed upon their lessons. Several of the little people gave great promise of future excellence. The following received prizes for term work: Conduct, a silver medal, Willie Godfrey, who also received the second reading prize and the prize for composition. First reading prize, Willie Rawlins, who gained a so a prize for spelling. Millie Rawlins obtained the first writing prize, and Sam Dowsett the second. Walter Giffard took the first prize in arithmetic and Stella Moore the second The geography prize was taken by Walter Giffard, Edwin Brown gained the second prize for spelling. Sadie Brown carried off the prize for recitation. Miss Berry has earned the heartiest thanks of the parents and pupils who have received her attentions, not only for the actual labor expended under the most trying circumstances, but for the good influence which she has ever exercised and the lasting effects her training and care have always had. The school will commence a new term early in September.
